

MORNING APPEAL.

Friday, April 30 1886

ANOTHER QUEER RULING.

The famous riparian rights litigation which has been before the California courts for years past, and often before its Legislature, on a question as to whether the old Common Law of riparian rights, or the Roman law of appropriation, is paramount in that State, has been finally settled by a decision of the California Supreme Court, which establishes the doctrine of riparian rights, and upsets the theory that any person has a legal right to appropriate and divert the waters of a stream.

This ruling simply says that water must be allowed to run into the ocean, and knocks in the head all irrigation schemes for developing the State of California. It was in the suit of Muller & Lux vs. Haggin & Teyis. It is said that Muller & Lux vowed they would win the suit, cost what it might, and they won it in the Supreme Court by a vote of three to two. Since the action of the Court in the Sharon case the people of California have lost about all the confidence they ever had in the Supreme Court, and this knocks out what was left. In the next election the people of California will rise up and sweep the present Supreme Court out of sight.

ZACH MONTGOMERY.

The APPEAL was gratified at the confirmation of Zach Montgomery. Speaking of this honest though badly prejudiced gentleman, the Post says: Mr. Montgomery had a narrow escape. One report says that he pulled through by two votes and the other puts the majority in his favor at only one. The Post now makes another prediction—that Mr. Montgomery will make an excellent official. He has his eccentricities and his prejudices, but he is a man of strong character and honest purposes, and everybody who knows him has not a shadow of doubt that he will conscientiously perform every duty that devolves upon him.

Senator Stewart's Pamphlet.

William Stewart's last pamphlet on the Chinese questions has been received at this office. It handles the question of the relations between the Chinese and the Caucasian races exhaustively and ably.

The merit of the argument rests on his comparison between the Chinese and the sheep herds. He says that the main factor in the struggle for supremacy lies in the adaptability of the Chinese for a low diet. They fatten where a white man would starve and thus the white man is driven out. He compares it to the struggle between sheep and cattle now going on in this state.

The sheep roam the pastures occupied by cattle and in a few years the range becomes almost a barren spot. The sheep takes possession and the bovine which is much the nobler animal is obliged to move off. The work deals with a live topic and will repay perusal.

Better late than never, perhaps. The San Francisco papers are now pitching into Bowers and showing up his brutal and murderous record. For further particulars see the Report's files of six months ago. When a man deserves punishment the Report is not afraid to hit him before he is down, and when he is in full fighting trim. The Report has been right about Bowers from first to last; and expects to be able to describe the hanging of him before election day.

There are three curb-stone brokers in New York who have heretofore prided themselves that they look like Jay Gould. They have always helped this out by dressing like him and wearing their beard cut like he does. Now they are going to the opposite extreme. All of them have shaved and wear bob-tail coats and wear baggy trousers. It is no longer safe to resemble the great railroad wrecker.

Judge Boardman of Reno has decided that L. L. Crockett is entitled to his home, and that it is not subject to execution under the judgments in the Thompson Reno Savings Bank cases.

C. S. Varian has been appointed assistant U. S. District Attorney of Utah at $2,500 a year.
